

Events in the Social Realm

The Baptist Ladies' Aid were entertained at the home of Mrs. J. L. Nicolai yesterday afternoon, a nice attendance being present. The hours were much enjoyed.

Miss Mazo Soules was hostess to a company of friends Friday night, the hours being spent with games, refreshments being served during the course of the entertainment.

Mrs. L. L. Smith and Mrs. L. C. Thomas entertained the ladies of the Guild at the Episcopal parish house yesterday, and the ladies report a successful gathering, both in numbers and sociability.

Misses Janet and Mabel Grassman were hostesses to the high school literary society Monday evening, the hours being spent with "The Princess", by Tennyson, after which delicious refreshments were served.

The M. E. Ladies' Aid Society met at the spacious home of Mrs. R. M. Hampton Wednesday afternoon, and she was assisted by Mesdames Vernon, Gaddis and Kuhn. Delightful hours were spent in an informal manner.

On Saturday evening last, at 9 p. m., Mr. Albert N. Milham of Bingham and Miss Elizabeth A. Yehger were married at the Methodist parsonage, by Rev. J. B. Carns. The happy couple will reside on the groom's ranch near Bingham.

Mrs. William Glass and Mrs. W. E. Guts were the hostesses for the ladies of the Christian church at an all-day session yesterday, at which time the hours were filled with arrangements for the all-day bazaar and luncheon which the ladies are to hold May 5 and 6. A nice crowd of the ladies gathered at the church for this session.

At the home of Mrs. W. R. Pate this morning, her mother, Mrs. Addie Sewell, presided at a three-course luncheon. Her guest list included Mesdames C. C. Smith, Nellie Wilson, E. T. Kibble, L. N. Worley, B. J. Sallows, E. G. Laing, J. G. Dole, J. A. Mallory, A. T. Lunn, J. A. Hunter, W. E. Spencer and A. S. Mote.

Invitations have been issued by the Knights of Columbus, Alliance council, No. 975, for their eleventh annual Easter ball to be given at the Phelan opera house on Monday evening, April 4. These social functions have always been enjoyed to the greatest extent and we are sure that this one will be none the least enjoyable.

Edith Lenora Scott entertained a number of her little friends Saturday afternoon, the occasion being her fifth birthday anniversary. The refreshments included a dainty birthday cake and ice cream. The friends present were Dorothy Mote, Thelma Shaver, Martin Lang, Belle Kennedy, Oscar Kennedy, Lucile Waddell, Clara Lang, Raymond Snyder, and Gladys Snyder.

The Woman's Club will meet with Mrs. Nellie Wilson Friday afternoon and will consider music as an art, of which it has been quoted, "Of all the arts, great music's the art to raise the soul above all earthly storms." Roll call to be responded to by comments on famous women in music. "Bohemian Girl" will be the center of discussion, and Mrs. Ponath will give best known musical selection and famous singers in opera, "Bohemian Girl". Miss May Graham will favor with a vocal selection, and Miss Hattie Renswold with instrumental.

A company of fourteen friends of Miss Winifred Berry gathered at the home of Mrs. J. J. Hodgkinson Sunday evening last, to help the young lady pass a pleasant "mile-stone." The hours were speedily passed with music and games, and the honored one presided at a delicious and bounteous repast at which the decorations were suggestive of the Easter season, the appointments laid corresponding, and the whole scene brightened by a profusion of flowers. The friends of the lady remembered her with many useful and appropriate gifts, to show their kindly regard.

A social item of last week which was handed in late for the issue but which was none the less important was the celebrating by Mrs. J. S. Rhein of a birthday anniversary on Monday afternoon of last week. Her guests at the occasion were Mesdames I. F. Tiller, R. C. Pearson, T. R. Crawford, W. E. Rousey, Lee Basye, I. E. Hughes and J. Jeffrey. A five course luncheon was served by the hostess, attractiveness being added to the event by the pretty decorations in pink roses and fern leaves, and pink candles. The ladies surely wish for their friend many happy returns of the festal occasion, and that they will be present to help her celebrate each one.

Miss Thelma Wesley most graciously entertained, Monday, 6 p. m., in honor of her mother's birthday. She proved herself to be a charming hostess, assisted by Misses Goldie Leith and Ethel Jacks. Pink and white were the colors in decorations. It was a delicious four-course dinner. The entre was orange sections with white sugar center, a miniature "daisy", that never tells the age. Each course was daintily planned. The beautiful gifts gave evidence of the place Mrs. Carr holds in the hearts of her loved ones. Her happy face gave a silent manifestation of her appreciation of the surprise. Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Coker, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Layton, Mrs. Jacks and Mrs. Campbell were present.

JAMES R. BARKLEY FEATURES A SUCCESS

Entertainment Tuesday Evening Is Granted as One of Best Ever Given in Alliance

The interested audience which attended the entertainment Tuesday evening at the Reddish hall were repaid to the fullest extent, and never have the three representatives of the Alliance School of Music favored with a finer executed program than was given at this setting, in itself being worth the price of the evening's enjoyment. Grieg's "Sunshine Song" and Mulder's "Staccato Polka" were artistically and pleasingly given by Miss Eunice Burnett, her joyous mood in the renditions especially effecting her listeners. Schubert-Liszt's "The Erl King" by Mrs. Edith Swan-Zediker, "Rondino" from Vieuxtemps, by Ralph R. Uniacke, and a closing number of Carpentier, "E'er Since the Day", by Miss Burnett, were alike a source of pleasure, and as always the musicians were able to "banish all dull care from the attentive hearers and make them susceptible to the program following, executed by James Robert Barkley, the famous lecturer, cartoonist and clay modeler. Mr. Barkley from his first crayon talk, "When the frost is on the pumpkins, and the fodder in the shock", illustrated, held the attention of all through to his closing illustrated talk on the "Journey of Life". We believe we can safely say that it was a misfortune for those who were detained from hearing this number, as the entire evening was one of profit and amusement.

POOL GIVES POINTS ON VOTE FOR JUDGE

Party Men Ballot for Exact Number of Officials Who Are to Be Chosen

Many people appear to be "up in the air" regarding the number of candidates to be voted for on the nonpartisan ballot for the different judicial offices, and Secretary of State Pool has been appealed to set them straight.

It appears that some people believe that because the law requires that twice the number of candidates shall be selected than the number to be elected at the regular election, that each voter must vote for twice the number, yet the secretary of state says that each voter may vote for but one candidate for chief justice of the supreme court and for three candidates for associate judges.

The two candidates receiving the highest votes for chief justice will have their names placed upon the ballot while the six candidates receiving the highest votes for associate justice will also have their names printed on the regular election ballot.

There must be a blank line for the writing in of a name on the nonpartisan primary ballot as well as on the regular ballot, according to an opinion given by Attorney General Reed.

The same opinion has been given by Secretary of State Pool in answer to inquiries coming to him.
